guilty Friday to aggravated murder and two other counts. She could get life without the possibility of parole on the murder charge. On Nov. 30, she shot and killed the child after dropping her off at her mother's house, according to an indictment. State prosecutors have said Hawkins-Logan called a relative and cried when the relative said she had killed the child. She then killed herself on the same day. Cuyahoga County Prosecutor Timothy McGinty said the mother had expressed suicidal thoughts just a week earlier. McGinty said that Hawkins-Logan was distraught over "a long-standing relationship with a boyfriend who was involved with drugs and no job." He said that the mother had, at one point, struck her child "in a manner which indicated that the defendant was not caring for the child's basic well-being." McGinty said the mother had been on suicide watch since her arrest. She had also attempted suicide while in jail. Hawkins-Logan was arrested in October 2013 after police found
